THE CROPS MISSISSIPPI.

The Helly Springs Reporter, of Friday, has the following in relation to the cotton crop in Marshall county:

We hear of the appearance of the werm upon one or two farms a few miles north of Helly Springs; but as yet little damage has been done. It appears to be the grass worm, which is the sconge so much dreaded. Every day lessens the chances of injury; and with a few more days of warm weather all danger will have passed.

chances of injury; and with a few more days of warm weather all danger will have passed.

Charlesten, Miss., Tullahemlan, Aug. 29: We hear of one or two localities in the county where the worms had made their appearance in large numbers, but they were confined to one or two fields only. We hear of a good deal of complaint of the boll worm in the cotton, but it is by no means general. The weather for the last few days has been very favorable indeed for the cotten crop. Our farmers have brightened np immensely. Holly Springs, (Miss.) Reporter, Sept. 14: Since our last report we have heard no further report of injury done by the worm. We do not think that the cotton or army worm has yet made its appearance in any section of Marshall county. Between Tyro and Wyatt, we learn that the corn and cotton crops are better and more promising than they have been at any time within the past ten years. Reports in relation to the crops in every section of the county are generally very lattering. With one set of enduring principles
